MRS. BETTIE PILE

Six Sons Tenderly Carry Mother
To Her Last Resting Place.
Impressive Funeral And
Burial Services.

Mook, Ky., May 13.--(Special.)--On Wednesday morning at early dawn, the beautiful spirit of Mrs. Bettie Pile, of Mook, took its flight to heaven. Though she had been ill for several months, she was not thought worse that morning, for she got up as was her custom to sit in her chair, and suddenly and quietly passed away.

Mrs. Pile was a home lover and a home maker. She always made, not only her children who were away, welcome, but the many frequent guests who stayed there from time to time. She lived fifty-nine useful years, and while she did not make loud her professions, yet she enjoyed each day her faith in Christ. The county has never lost a more noble, more useful, nor a more consecrated mother of Israel.

The funeral services were conducted by Bro. Odie Penick on Thursday morning. Her six grown sons bore her to her last resting place in the beautiful little cemetery near the home she always loved. She is survived by six sons and two daughters: Joel H. Pile, Gilbert Pile, Wade Pile, Victor Pile, Homer Pile, Ova Pile and Mrs. Mollie Alexander, of Custer and Miss Eliza Pile, of Mook.

BACKACHE NOT A DISEASE

But a Symptom, a Danger Signal Which Every Woman Should Heed.

Backache is a symptom of organic weakness or derangement. If you have backache don't neglect it. To get permanent relief you must reach the root of the trouble. Read about Mrs. Woodall's experience.

Morton's Gap, Kentucky. — "I suffered two years with female disorders, my health was very bad and I had a continual backache which was simply awful. I could not stand on my feet long enough to cook a meal's victuals without my back nearly killing me, and I would have such dragging sensations I could hardly bear it. I had soreness in each side, could not stand tight clothing, and was irregular. I was completely run down. On advice I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and an enjoying good health. It is now more than two years and I have not had an ache or pain since. I do all my own work, washing and everything, and never have backache any more. I think your medicine is grand and I praise it to all my neighbors. If you think my testimony will help others you may publish it."—Mrs. OLLIE WOODALL, Morton's Gap, Kentucky.

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (Confidential) Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Never Suspect It.

How To Find Out.

Fill a bottle or common glass with your water and let it stand twenty-four hours; a brick dust sediment, or settling, stringy or milky appearance often indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys; too frequent desire to pass it or pain in the back are also symptoms that tell you the kidneys and bladder are out of order and need attention.

What To Do.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, fulfills almost every wish in correcting rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. Corrects inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often through the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest because of its remarkable health restoring properties. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes.

You may have a sample bottle sent free by mail. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. Mention this paper and remember the name, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

Stable For Wilson.

If Woodrow Wilson should be nominated for President he would defeat either Taft or Roosevelt. We think it extremely doubtful whether any of the other candidates could do that. Quite the fad now to have a collection—makes no difference whether you are rich or poor, start a collection. One of New York's wealthy men has started a collection of fine tooth brushes, another a collection of marbles, and one young lady has a collection of precious stones.

CROSSES THE RIVER OF LIFE

Veteran Steamboat Man Called,
Capt. Richard T. Williams
Passes Away At The Age Of Seventy-Nine Years--Dies At Evansville.

BEAUTIFUL FLORAL TRIBUTES

Capt. Richard T. Williams, age 79, well-known steamboat man on the Ohio and Green rivers, died at his home in Evansville, Ind., Monday morning, May 6, from the effect of a paralytic stroke suffered three years ago. A few days ago his condition became alarming and his relatives were notified and all his immediate family was present. He leaves the following children, who were at the bedside: Thoma A. Williams, N. J. Edgar, Jeff H., Florence, Mrs. Ella Watlington, of Evansville; Mrs. E. D. Legler, Eddy, Texas; Mrs. J. H. Hines, of Morgantown; and brothers, John G. Williams, of Evansville, and Nelson Williams, of Princeton, Ind. He also leaves two sisters, Mrs. B. E. Smith and Mrs. R. A. Hanes, of Connersville, Ind., who was not present on account of illness.

Capt. Williams was born in Franklin county, Ind., April 26, 1833; his father and mother coming from Kentucky, entering a land claim. His father was one of the pioneer settlers of this section of Indiana, being a land owner and prosperous farmer. Capt. Williams being the oldest of six children, spent his boyhood days in helping his father clear and cultivate the farm which he did in summer and attending the meagre schools which were in session about three months during the winter.

He became a teacher in the district schools and when he grew to manhood he settled in Alton, Ind., engaging in the carpenter trade several years. Later he became a contractor and builder that led to the lumber business and he bought woodlands in that section and operated saw mills also operated a flour mill being the only one in that country. In shipping lumber to the market by river, Capt. Williams' interest turned to steamboat business and in 1884 he engaged in the Stephensport and Owensboro Ky., packet business until 1889 he entered a boat in the Evansville and Green river trade, it being the first Green river boat under Government control. Before this a company had the river leased and operated their own boats. He was engaged in this business until a few years ago when he retired and turned his interest over to his sons, who are engaged in river traffic at the present time with a Company in the Evansville and Bowling Green trade.

He was one of the organizers and charter members of the Masonic Lodge at Alton, Ind., in 1854 and had gone through all the chairs of the lodge and for that reason they requested that he hold his membership there which he did up to his death.

He was united in marriage April 3, 1856 to Miss Patience Snodgrass, daughter of a prominent farmer of Perry county, Ind. Their wedded life lasting more than 51 years, having celebrated their golden wedding in 1906, surrounded by the surviving sons and daughters and grand-children.

The funeral of Capt. Williams was conducted on the morning of May 8 at the family residence, 1027 South Third street in Evansville. The rooms, which were literally filled with beautiful flowers, were crowded with the many friends of the late Captain. Mrs. Ben Thompson sang two selections, "Jesus Lover of My Soul," and "Rock of Ages," at the special request of the family. Rev. W. B. Farmer, of Trinity M. E. church, made the address while Evansville Lodge No. 61 of Masons were in charge of the services. Following the services at the home the body was interred in the family lot at Oak Hill cemetery after the services at the grave.

Tired Mothers

(By May Riley Smith)

A little elbow leans upon your knee,
Your tired knee that has so much to bear;
A child's dear eyes are looking lovingly
From underneath a thatch of tangled hair.
Perhaps you do not heed the velvet touch
Of warm, moist fingers folding yours so tight;
You do not prize this blessing over-much—
You almost are too tired to pray to-night.

But it is blessedness! A year ago
I did not see it as I do today—
We are so dull and thankless, and too slow
To catch the sunshine 'till it slips away.
And now it seems surpassing strange to me,
'That, while I wore the badge of motherhood,
I did not kiss more oft' and tenderly
'The little child that brought me only good.

And if, some night when you sit down to rest,
You miss this elbow from your tired knee,—
This restless curling head from off your breast—
This lisping tongue that chatters constantly;
If from your own the dimpled hands had slipped,
And ne'er would nestle in your palm again;
If the white feet into their grave had tripped,
I could not blame you for your heart-ache then.

I wonder so that mothers ever fret
At little children clinging to their gowns;
Or that the footprints, when the days are wet,
Are ever black enough to make them frown.
If I could find a little muddy boot,
Or caps or jackets on my chamber floor,—
If I could kiss a rosy, restless foot,
And hear it patter in my house once more.

If I could mend a broken cart today,
Tomorrow make a kite to reach the sky,
There is no woman in God's world could say
She was more blissfully content than I.
But ah! the dainty pillow next my own
Is never rumped by a shining head;
My singing birdling from its nest has flown,—
The little love I used to kiss is dead!

A COMMON ERROR

The Same Mistake Is Made By Many Cloverport People.

It's a common error
To plaster the aching back,
To rub with liniments, rheumatic joints,
If the trouble comes from the kidneys.

It's time to use Doan's Kidney Pills.
Here is convincing proof of merit.
Mrs. W. N. Bartlett, 620 Triplett St.,
Owensboro, Ky., says: "Several years ago I used Doan's Kidney Pills and cannot say too much in their praise. For a long time I had nearly every symptom of kidney disease. My back ached terribly at night and I did not sleep well. During the day I was nervous and in bed all the time. My feet became swollen and I knew that I required a good remedy to cure me. I had often heard Doan's Kidney Pills highly recommended, so I procured a supply and began taking them as directed. Doan's Kidney Pills cured me and they are the only remedy that I will ever use for kidney trouble. I can highly recommend them, as they lived up to the claims made for them."

THE TRADE AND METHODS OF MR. EDELEN GREAT

Allen S. Edelen, of Burgin, Ky., owner of beautiful Glenworth Farm, recently sold the good three year old stallion Mount Arle Lad to C. C. Tays, of Wheeler, Miss. Mount Arle Lad is the two year old that Mack Hughes, of Danville, Ky., showed so successfully last year. This horse is sired by Montgomery Lawson, dam, by Blonde Squirrel. Mr. Edelen received $600 for this horse and when Mr. Tays got him home, he and his partner decided that the horse was worth just twice what he cost them. Mr. Edelen certainly has a great trade in the South. He never intentionally misrepresents any stock and satisfies a customer always when occasion arises. His methods of doing business has been the means of his building up the enviable patronage he now enjoys and deserves.

Mr. Edelen has at the head of his excellent band of mares the celebrated Bohemian King 2410, that in his three year old form at the Louisville Horse Show defeated the aged stallions, a feat accomplished by no other three year old except his sire, Bourbon King. Bohemian King is a rich chestnut with star and hind ankles white. He is 16 hands high and weighs 1,300 pounds. He has for his first dam Queen of Harrison, by Harrison Chief; second dam a daughter of Patchen Chief by Mambrino Patchen, the great grandsire of Dan Patch 1455. The third dam of Bohemian King was by Bald Stockings, the first horse ever noticed to go the running walk which he transmitted to his get.

Bohemian King is certainly a sire of saddle and show horses, as has been demonstrated everywhere his colts have been exhibited, and Mr. Edelen is fortunate in having him at the head of his stud.—Farmers' Home Journal.

WILSON IN THE LEAD

The action of the Democrats of the states of Texas and South Carolina last week, which insures Woodrow Wilson the votes of those two states in the National convention, easily puts him in the lead over his opponents, which, from this time forward, he will maintain. Mr. Clark's troubles seem to have overtaken him. While he got a majority of the votes cast in the Presidential primary in Massachusetts, the Foss delegates were successful, and they will likely vote for Mr. Foss instead of Mr. Clark, as the Roosevelt delegates from the same state will do between Taft and Roosevelt, although Taft carried the State.

Notwithstanding Iowa joins Missouri, and Clark was expected to have the solid instructions from that State, Wilson shows up strong in the conventions held there and neither can claim a majority of the delegates on instructions. It is probable that within the next few days Gov. Wilson's handsome lead will be further augmented by the 24 votes of New Jersey, the 24 votes of Virginia, the 34 votes of Michigan, where a number of the county conventions have already been held, and the votes of Minnesota, North Carolina, New Hampshire, and others. There is no doubt but that Wilson will also carry a large number of the districts in the state of Ohio, where he is the only progressive candidate against Harmon. There is but little possibility of Clark making substantial gains to the vote already instructed for him, as his State and these adjoining Missouri have held their conventions, and most of the other states have been assigned to Harmon or Underwood by the combine against Wilson. The following shows the relative votes of the candidates to date:

Instructed for, pledged or favorable to Gov. Wilson:

Pennsylvania	76
Wisconsin	21
Texas	40
South Carolina	18
Oregon	10
Oklahoma	10
Maine	7
Delaware	6
Illinois	2
Porto Rico	6
Total	196

Instructed for, pledged or favorable to Speaker Clark:

Illinois	56
Missouri	36
Oklahoma	10
Kansas	20

Total	159

Instructed for, pledged or favorable to Underwood:

Alabama	24
Georgia	26
Mississippi	20
Florida	12
Total	82

Instructed for, pledged or favorable to Gov. Harmon:

Maine	4
Wisconsin	3
Nebraska	4
Total	11

Marshall has the 30 votes of Indiana, while Burke has the 10 votes of North Dakota.

Total number of delegates in Democratic National convention, 1,094.

Several weeks ago when Gov. Woodrow Wilson won an overwhelming victory over all opposition in Pennsylvania in the primaries, certain newspapers in their headlines and comment emphatically stated that the powerful Guffy machine turned the Keystone state's vote over to the New Jersey Governor. The News stated that this charge was contemptibly false, as both the Guffy and the anti-Guffy factions were supporting Mr. Wilson in an effort to "ride in" on the strength of his popularity.

The events of the past few days proved the correctness of the News' statement. By a vote of 110 to 73 the Guffy crowd was beaten in the organization of the convention, Guffy was deposed from the state party leadership and yet the name of Mr. Wilson was the only one presented to the convention, which named the delegates from the state at large.

Certain it is that had the Guffy adherents alone supported Mr. Wilson and had he "turned over the state," as was reported, the victorious opposition to the boss would have thrown their strength to some other Presidential candidate. The News was right when it said that both the factions in Pennsylvania favored Wilson's candidacy. Had Guffy and his followers solely been for him, he would not have gotten the delegates at large. —E'town News.

Davis D. Dowell, of Hardinsburg, is learning the value of newspaper publicity and is using it in his insurance business with splendid results. The time has passed when a man simply hangs out his shingle and waits for trade to come—now he must take the initiative and make a push for business.

Efficient advertising, truth telling, and enterprise are the qualities that draw trade and should be practiced by insurance agents, as well as the companies they represent. Good advertising gives the impression that the insurance representative is alert and energetic in meeting all the requirements of the public and establishes the "good will" among the people that he seeks.

In speaking of advertising a business man said:

"A newspaper advertisement can be placed in every home for one per cent of the cost of personal solicitation. It is read when people are at their leisure, and in a mood to listen to what the insurance man has to say."

Mr. Dowell has gotten hold of the best way to "talk to the public," so that he convinces them of the importance of insurance without bothering them with the usual insurance agent's line of talk.

CIRCUIT COURT.

Circuit Court convened at Hardinsburg Monday. Judge Sandidge presiding and Commonwealth's Attorney J. R. Layman looking after the criminal docket. Judge Sandidge instructed the grand jury. He gave them some advice that ought to help them in their work. The Judge is a very plain matter of fact man. He uses words of wisdom and thought. He speaks from within and to the point. He knows evil doers and their actions. They have no rights under the law, he says. The laws are made to restrain them and protect the rights of good citizens, and he impressed the jury as he did those outside the panel that it was their sworn duty to see that the laws were enforced. The Judge has presided over this Court before and is welcomed back by the bar and the people.

Dear Subscriber—Did you get our card? We are looking for an answer. It is very important to the success of our business that these cards should have prompt attention.

Things look a deal brighter in our office since we washed our windows—even if the chances for Woodrow Wilson carrying Kentucky are not as bright as they might be.

We are going to send our aeroplane over to Custer—can't get over the roads—to see if there is any truth in that trolley line, so much talked of over there.

There'll be somebody "er hollering" down in Missouri before this Presidential affair is ended. They won't need any "show me" either.

Col. Ben Johnson says every Democrat in the Fourth Congressional is for Clark. We think Col. Ben is a little off in his estimate.

Gov. McCreary says he is for Clark and harmony—why not Wilson and harmony?

FATHER BREY

Delivers A Masterly Address At Kentucky's Bethlehem At The Centennial Celebration April 24th.

In keeping with the traditions of a century of quiet and earnest work, the celebration of the Centennial of the Loretto Sisters at Bethlehem Academy, Saint John, Ky., was simple, yet probably as dignified and impressive as at any of the other houses of the order.

The second feature was a masterly address by Rev. Father C. Brey, of Cloverport, mainly devoted to an historical review of the past eighty-two years' history of Bethlehem Academy. The tribute of Father Brey was all the more valuable, since it served to collect together the little that has been recorded of the history of this venerable house. The Bethlehem Sisters have lived true to the traditions inculcated by the pioneer Sisters who founded Bethlehem Academy and Convent and have been content to know that all their labors and sacrifices, unnoticed by the world, were recorded in the Book of Life. —The Catholic Record.

Look Out For The Birds.

Every farmer in the county and every one ought to see to it that the birds are not disturbed in their hatching. A community or a county without birds is bereft of much of its brightness and happiness. Look after them a little and they will more than do their part in bringing happiness to a humanity besides the scavenger work they do is of incalculable value to the farmer and the gardner. —Bowling Green News.

Shower For Miss Willett.

Mrs. George Edwin Hays, of Louisville, has issued invitations to a miscellaneous shower for Miss Wanda Willett, of Shelbyville, who will be one of the June brides. The shower will be given from three to five o'clock, May 11, at Mrs. Hays' home in Louisville. —Shelbyville News.

The Household Fairy.

Have you heard of the household fairy sweet,
Who keeps the home so bright and neat?
Who enters the rooms of boys and girls,
And finds lost marbles or smooths out curls?
Who mends the rent in a girlie's frock,
Or darns a hole in a tomboy's sock?
If you don't believe it is true, I say
You may search and find her this very day

In your home.

You must not look for a maiden fair,
With starry eyes and golden hair;
Her hair may be threaded with silver gray,
But one glance of her eyes drives care away,
And the touch of her hand is so soft and light
When it smoothes out a place for your head at night.
If you know of some one just like this,
My household fairy you cannot miss

The Cruel Way

Most of the methods of "breaking up" hens from setting are cruel, and tire and distress the innocent hens who are not to blame for their instinct. The kindest way is the following:

When it is necessary to stop the inclination, place the hen in a nice clean coop alone with fresh grass and all the meat cut fine that she will eat. The meat immediately increases the egg nourishment, and while the hen is having a really good time, she is fast preparing herself to commence laying eggs. It will take but two or three days before she forgets all about setting, having other affairs to attend to.

CHAPTER VI.

A Conspiracy in Satin.

The tall man emptied one hand of its suitcase to clasp the hand the newcomer granted him. He held it fast as he exclaimed: "Don't tell me that you are bound for Reno!" She whimpered: "I'm afraid so, Mr. Ashton."

He put down everything to take her other hand, and tuned his voice to condolence: "Why, I thought you and Sam Whitcomb were—"

"Oh, we were until that shameless Mrs. Wellington—"

"Mrs. Wellington? Don't believe I know her."

"I thought everybody had heard of Mrs. Jimmie Wellington."

"Mrs. Jimmie—oh, yes, I've heard of her!" Everybody seemed to have heard of Mrs. Jimmie Wellington.

"What a dance she has led her poor husband!" Mrs. Whitcomb said. "And my poor Sammy fell into her trap, too."

Ashton, zealous comforter, took a wrathful tone: "I always thought your husband was the most unmitigated—"

But Mrs. Whitcomb huddled at once. "How dare you criticize Sammy! He's the nicest boy in the world."

Ashton recovered quickly. "That's what I started to say. Will he contest the divorce?"

"Of course not," she beamed. "The dear fellow would never deny me anything. Sammy offered to get it himself, but I told him he'd better stay in Chicago and stick to business. I shall need such a lot of alimony."

"Too bad he couldn't have come along," Ashton insinuated.

But the irony was wasted, for she sighed: "Yes, I shall miss him terribly. But we feared that if he were with me it might hamper me in getting a divorce on the ground of desertion."

She was trying to look earnest and thoughtful and heartbroken, but the result was hardly plausible, for Mrs. Sammy Whitcomb could not possibly have been really earnest or really thoughtful; and her heart was quite too elastic to break. She proved it instantly, for when she heard behind her the voice of a young man asking her to let him pass, she turned to protest, but seeing that he was a handsome young man, her starch was instantly changed to sugar. And she rewarded his good looks with a smile, as he rewarded hers with another.

Then Ashton intervened like a dog in the manger and dragged her off to her seat, leaving the young man to exclaim:

"Some tamarind, that!"

Another young man behind him growled: "Cut out the tamarinds and get to business. Mallory will be here any minute."

"I hate to think what he'll do to us when he sees what we've done to him."

"Oh, he won't dare to fight in the presence of his little bride-widely. Do you see the porter in there?"

"Yes, suppose he objects."

"Well, we have the tickets. We'll claim it's our section till Mallory and Mrs. Mallory come."

They moved on into the car, where the porter confronted them. When he saw that they were loaded with bundles of all shapes and sizes, he waved them away with scorn:

"The emigrant sleeps runs only Toosdays and Thuzdays."

From behind the first mass of packages came a brisk military answer:

"You black hound! About face—forward march! Section number one."

The porter retreated down the aisle, apologizing glibly. "Scuse me for questioning you, but you-all's baggage looked kind of eccentric at first."

The two young men dumped their parcels on the seats and began to unwrap them hastily.

"If Mallory catches us, he'll kill us," said Lieutenant Shaw. Lieutenant Hudson only laughed and drew out a long streamer of white satin ribbon. Its glimmer, and the glimmering eyes of the young man excited Mrs. Whitcomb so much that after a little hesitation she moved forward, followed by the jealous Ashton.

"Oh, what's up?" she ventured. "It looks like something bridal."

"Talk about womanly intuition!" said Lieutenant Hudson, with an ingratiating salutation.

And then they explained to her that their classmate at West Point, being ordered suddenly to the Philippines, had arranged to elope with his beloved Marjorie Newton; had asked them to get the tickets and check the baggage while he stopped at a minister's to "get spliced and like for Manila by this train."

Having recounted this plan in the full belief that it was even at that moment being carried out successfully, Lieutenant Hudson, with a ghoulish smile, explained:

"Being old friends of the bride and groom, we want to fix their section up in style and make them truly comfortable."

"Delicious!" gushed Mrs. Whitcomb. "But you ought to have some rice and old shoes."

"Here's the rice," said Hudson. "Here's the old shoes," said Shaw.

"Lovely!" cried Mrs. Whitcomb, but then she grew soberer. "I should think, though, that they—the young couple—would have preferred a stateroom."

"Of course," said Hudson, almost blushing, "but it was taken. This was the best we could do for them."

"That's why we want to make it nice and bride-like," said Shaw. "Perhaps you could help us—a woman's touch—"

"Oh, I'd love to," she glowed, hastening into the section among the young men and the bundles. The unusual stir attracted the porter's suspicions. He came forward with a look of authority:

"Scuse me, but wha—what's all this?"

"Vanish—get out," said Hudson, poking a coin at him. As he turned to obey, Mrs. Whitcomb checked him with: "Oh, Porter, could you get us a hammer and some nails?"

The porter almost blushed: "Good Lawd, Miss, you ain't allowin' to drive nails in that woodwork, is you?" That woodwork was to him what the nitars is to the priest.

But Hudson, resorting to heroic measures, hypnotized him with a two-dollar bill: "Here, take this and see nothing, hear nothing, say nothing." The porter caressed it and chuckled: "I'm blind, deaf and speechless." He turned away, only to come back at once with a timid "Scuse me!"

"You here yet?" growled Hudson.

Anxiously the porter pleaded: "I just want to ask one question. Is you all fixin' up for a bridal couple?"

"Foolish question, number eight million, forty-three," said Shaw. "Answer, no, we are."

The porter's face glistened like fresh stove polish as he gloated over the prospect. "I tell you, it'll be mighty refreshin' to have a bridal couple on board! This dog-on Reno train don't carry nothin' much but divorcees. I'm just nachally hungry for a bridal couple."

"Bride couple-hic!" came a voice, like an echo that had somehow become intoxicated in transit. It was Little Jimmie Wellington looking for more sympathy. "Whass zis about bride couple?"

"Why, here's Little Buttercup!" sang out young Hudson, looking at him in amazed amusement.

"Did I un'stan' somebody say you're preparing for bride couple?"

Lieutenant Shaw grinned. "I don't know what you understood, but that's what we're doing."

Immediately Wellington's great face began to churn and work like a big eddy in a river. Suddenly he was weeping. "Excuse these tears, zentlemen, but I once—I was once a b-b-ride myself."

"He looks like a whole wedding party," was Ashton's only comment on the copious grief. It was poor Wellington's fate to hunt vainly for sympathy as Diogenes for honesty. The decorators either ignored him or shunted him aside. They were interested in a strange contrivance of ribbons and a box that Shaw produced.

"That," Hudson explained, "is a little rice trap. We hang that up there and when the bride couple sit down—biff! a shower of rice all over them. It's bad, eh?"

Everybody agreed that it was a happy thought, and even Jimmie Wellington, like a great baby, bounding from tears to laughter on the instant, was shouting: "A rishe trap? That's absolutely splendid—greatest invention modern times. I must stick around and see her when she flops." And then he lurched forward like a too-obliging elephant. "Let me help you."

Mrs. Whitcomb, who had now mounted a step ladder and poised herself as gracefully as possible, shrieked with alarm, as she saw Wellington's bulk rolling toward her frail support.

If Hudson and Shaw had not been football veterans at West Point and had not known just what to do when the center rush comes hucking the line, they could never have blocked that flying wedge. But they checked him and impelled him backward through his own curtains into his own berth.

Finding himself on his back, he decided to remain there. And there he remained, oblivious of the carnival preparations going on just outside his canopy.

CHAPTER VII.

The Masked Minister.

Being an angel must have this great advantage at least, that one may sit in the grandstand overlooking the earth and enjoy the ludicrous blunder of that great blind man's buff we call life.

This night, if any angels were watching Chicago, the Mallory mix-up must have given them a good laugh, or a good cry—according to their natures.

Here were Mallory and Marjorie, still merely engaged, bitterly regretting their inability to get married and to continue their journey together. There in the car were the giggling conspirators preparing a bridal mockery for their sweet confusion.

Then the angels might have nudged one another and said:

"Oh, it's all right now. There goes the minister hurrying to their very car. Mallory has the license in his pocket, and here comes the parson. Hooray!"

And then the angelic cheer must have died out as the one great hurrah of a crowded ball-ground is quenched in air when the home team's vitally needed home run swerves outside the line and drops useless as a stupid foul ball.

In a shabby old hack, were two of the happiest runaways that ever sought a train. They were not miserable like the young couple in the taxicab. They were white-haired both. They had been married for thirty years. Yet this was their real honeymoon, their real elopement.

The little woman in the timid gray bonnet clapped her hands and giggled like a schoolgirl.

"Oh, Walter, I can't believe we're really going to leave Ypsilanti for a while. Oh, but you've earned it after thirty years of being a preacher."

"Hush. Don't let me hear you say the awful word," said the little old man in the little black hat and the close-fitting black bib. "I'm so tired of it, Sally, I don't want anybody on the train to know it."

"They can't help guessing it, with your collar buttoned behind."

And then the amazing minister actually dared to say, "Here's where I change it around." What's more, he actually did it. Actually took off his collar and buttoned it to the front.

The old carriage seemed almost to rock with the earthquake of the deed.

"Why, Walter Temple!" his wife exclaimed. "What would they say in Ypsilanti?"

"They'll never know," he answered, defiantly.

"But your bib?" she said.

"I've thought of that, too," he cried, as he whipped it off and stuffed it into a handbag. "Look, what I've thought." And he dangled before her startled eyes a long affair which the sudden light from a passing lamp-post revealed to be nothing less than a flaring red tie.

The old lady touched it to make sure she was not dreaming it. Then, omitting further parley with fate, she snatched it away, put it round his neck, and, since her arms were embracing him, kissed him twice before she knotted the ribbon into a flaming bow. She sat back and regarded the vision a moment, then flung her arms round him and hugged him till he gasped:

"Watch out—watch out. Don't crush my cigars."

"Cigars! Cigars!" she echoed, in a daze.

And then the astounding husband produced them in proof.

"Genuine Lillian Russells—five cents straight."

"But I never saw you smoke."

"Haven't taken a puff since I was a young fellow," he grinned, winking his head. "But now it's my vacation, and I'm going to smoke up."

She squeezed his hand with an earlier ardor: "Now you're the old Walter Temple I used to know."

"Sally," he said, "I've been travelling through life on a half-fare ticket. Now I'm going to have my little fling. And you brace up, too, and be the old mischievous Sally I used to know. Aren't you glad to be away from those sewing circles and gossip-bees, and—"

"Ugh! Don't ever mention them," she shuddered. Then she, too, felt a tinge of recurring springtide. "If you start to smoke, I think I'll take up flirting once more."

He pinched her cheek and laughed. "As the saying is, go as far as you desire and I'll leave the coast clear."

He kept his promise, too, for they were no sooner on the train and snugly bestowed in section five, than he was up and off.

"Where are you going?" she asked.

"To the smoking-room," he swaggered, brandishing a dangerous-looking cigar.

"Oh, Walter," she snickered, "I feel like a young runaway."

"You look like one. Be careful not to let anybody know that you're a—"

he lowered his voice—"an old preacher's wife."

"I'm as ashamed of it as you are," she whispered. Then he threw her a kiss and a wink. She threw him a kiss and a wink, too. And he went along the aisle eyeing his cigar glottingly. As he entered the smoking-room, lighted the weed and blew out a great puff with a sigh of rapture, who could have taken him, with his feet cocked up, and his red tie rakishly askew, for a minister?

And Sally herself was busy disguising herself, loosening up her hair coquettishly, smiling the primness out of the set corners of her mouth and even—let the truth be told at all costs—even passing a pink-powdered puff over her pale cheeks with guilty surreptition.

Thus arrayed she was soon joining the conspirators bedecking the bower for the expected bride and groom. She was the youngest and most mischievous of the lot. She felt herself a bride again, and vowed to protect this timid little wife to come from too much hilarity at the hands of the conspirators.

CHAPTER VIII.

A Mixed Pickle.

Mrs. Whitcomb had almost blushed when she had murmured to Lieutenant Hudson:

"I should think the young couple would have preferred a stateroom."

And Mr. Hudson had flinched a little as he explained:

"Yes, of course. We tried to get it, but it was gone."

It was during the excitement over the decoration of the bridal section, that the stateroom-tenants slipped in unobserved.

First came a fluttering woman whose youthful beauty had a certain hue of experience, saddening and wiser. The porter brought her in from the station-platform, led her to the stateroom's concave door and passed in with her luggage. But she lingered without, a Peri at the gate of Paradise. When the porter returned to bow her in, she shivered and hesitated, and then demanded:

"Oh, porter, are you sure there's nobody else in there?"

The porter chuckled, but humored her panic.

"I ain't seen nobody. Shall I look under the seat?"

To his dismay, she nodded her head violently. He rolled his eyes in wonderment, but returned to the stateroom, made a pretense of examination, and came back with a face full of reassurance. "No'm, they's nobody there. Take a mighty small-size hurgle to squeeze under that bald—er—berth. No'm, nobody there."

"Oh!"

The gasp was so unequivocal that he made hold to ask:

"Is you pleased or disappointed?"

The mysterious young woman was too much agitated to rebuke the impudence. She merely sighed: "Oh, porter, I'm so anxious."

"I'm not—now," he muttered, for she handed him a coin.

"Porter, have you seen anybody on board that looks suspicious?"

"Ev'body looks suspicious to me, Missy. But what was you expecting—especial?"

"Oh, porter, have you seen anybody that looks like a detective in disguise?"

"Well, they's one man looks 's if he was disguised as a balloon, but I don't believe he's no sloop-hound."

"Well, if you see anybody that looks like a detective and he asks for Mrs. Fosdick—"

"Mrs. What-dick?"

"Mrs. Fosdick! You tell him I'm not on board." And she gave him another coin.

"Yassum," said the porter, lingering willingly on such fertile soil. "I'll tell him Mrs. Fosdick done give me her word she wasn't on board."

For Women Who Care

Of course you use an antiseptic in your family and in the care of your own person, and you want the best.

Instead of what you have been using such as liquid or tablet antiseptics or peroxide, won't you please try Paxtine, a concentrated antiseptic powder to be dissolved in water as needed.

Paxtine is more economical, more cleansing, more germicidal and more healing than anything you ever used.

Paxtine
ANTISEPTIC

In the toilet—to cleanse and whiten the teeth, remove tartar and prevent decay. To disinfect the mouth, destroy disease germs, and purify the breath. To keep artificial teeth and bridgework clean and odorless. To remove nicotine from the teeth and purify the breath after smoking. To eradicate perspiration odors by sponge bathing.

As a medicinal agent for local treatment of feminine ills where pelvic catarrh, inflammation and ulceration exist, nothing equals hot douches of Paxtine. For ten years the Lydia E. Pinkham Med. Co. has been regularly advising their patients to use it because of its extraordinary cleansing, healing and germicidal power. For this purpose alone Paxtine is worth its weight in gold. Also for nasal catarrh, sore throat, inflamed eyes, cuts and wounds. All druggists, 25 and 50 cents a box. Trial box and testimony of 31 women free on request.

"You look like one. Be careful not to let anybody know that you're a—"

he lowered his voice—"an old preacher's wife."

"I'm as ashamed of it as you are," she whispered. Then he threw her a kiss and a wink. She threw him a kiss and a wink, too. And he went along the aisle eyeing his cigar glottingly. you."

"What kind of a woman?"

"The hideous kind that men call handsome."

"Oh, ain't they hideous, them handsome women?"

"Well, if such a woman asks for Mrs. Fosdick—she's my husband's first wife—but of course that doesn't interest you."

"No'm—yes'm."

"If she comes—tell her—tell her—oh, what shall we tell her?"

The porter rubbed his thick skull: "Lemme see—we might say you—I tell you what we'll tell her: we'll tell her you took the train for New York; and if she runs mighty fast she can just about catch it."

"Fine, fine!" And she rewarded his genius with another coin. "And, porter," he had not budged. "Porter, if a very handsome man with luscious eyes and a soulful smile asks for me—"

"I'll throw him off the train!"

"Oh, no—no!—that's my husband—my present husband. You may let him in. Now is it all perfectly clear, porter?"

"Oh, yassum, clear as clear." Thus guaranteed she entered the stateroom, leaving the porter alone with his problem. He tried to work it out in a semi-audible mumble: "Lemme see! If your present husband's absent wife gets on board disguised as a handsome hideous woman I'm to throw him—her—off the train and let her—him—come in—oh, yassum, you may rely on me." He bowed and held out his hand. But she was gone. He shuffled on into the car.

He had hardly left the little space before the stateroom when a handsome man with luscious eyes, but without any smile at all, came slinking along the corridor and tapped cautiously on the door. Silence alone answered him at first, then when he had rapped again, he heard a muffled:

"Go away. I'm not in."

He put his lips close and softly called: "Edith!"

At this Sesame the door opened a trifle, but when he tried to enter, a hand thrust him back and a voice again warned him off. "You musn't come in."

"But I'm your husband."

"That's just why you musn't come in." The door opened a little wider to give him a view of a down-cast beauty moaning:

"Oh, Arthur, I'm so afraid."

"Afraid?" he sniffed. "With your husband here?"

"That's the trouble, Arthur. What if your former wife should find us together?"

"But she and I are divorced."

"In some states, yes—but other states don't acknowledge the divorce. That former wife of yours is a fiend to pursue us this way."

"She's no worse than your former husband. He's pursuing us, too. My divorce was as good as yours, my dear."

"Yes, and no better."

The angels looking on might have judged from the ready tempers of the newly married and not entirely unmarried twain that their new alliance promised to be as exciting as their previous estates. Perhaps the man subtly felt the presence of those external envedroppers, for he tried to end the love-duel in the corridor with an appealing caress and a tender appeal: "But let's not start our honeymoon with a quarrel."

His partial wife returned the caress and tried to explain: "I'm not quarreling with you, dear heart, but with the horrid divorce laws. Why, oh, why did we ever interfere with them?"

He made a brave effort with: "We ended two unhappy marriages, Edith, to make one happy one."

"But I'm so unhappy, Arthur, and so afraid."

He seemed a trifle afraid himself and his gaze was askance as he urged: "But the train will start soon, Edith—and then we shall be safe."

Mrs. Fosdick had a genius for inventing unpleasant possibilities. "But what if your former wife or my former husband should have a detective on board?"

"A detective?—poof!" He snapped his fingers in bravado. "You are posed that they were simply come to bid some of his passengers good-bye. No tips were to be expected from such transients, so he allowed them to help themselves up the steps.

Mallory and his Marjorie had tried to kiss the farewell or farewells half a dozen times, but she could not let him go at the gate. She asked the guard to let her through, and her beauty was bribe enough.

Again and again, she and Mallory paused. He wanted to take her back to the taxi, but she would not be so dismissed. She must spend the last available second with him.

"I'll go as far as the steps of the car," she said. When they were arrived there, two porters, a sleeping car conductor and several smoking saunterers profaned the tryst. So she whispered that she would come aboard, for the corridor would be a quiet lane for the last rites.

And now that he had her actually on the train, Mallory's whole soul revolted against letting her go. The vision of her standing on the platform sad-eyed and lorn, while the train swept him off into space was unendurable. He shut his eyes against it, but it glowed inside the lids.

And then temptation whispered him its old "Why not?" While it was working in his soul like a fermenting yeast, he was saying:

"To think that we should owe all our misfortune to an infernal taxi-cab's break-down."

Out of the anguish of her loneliness he got one little complaint:

"You had really wanted me, you'd have taken two taxis."

"Taxis?" he said. "I had John Tindall and the minister."

PAPER BAG COOKING

Great System Perfected by M. Soyer, Famous London Chef.

THE INNER GROWING TIT-BITS.

By Martha McCulloch Williams.

Give instant allegiance to paper bag cookery, all ye who dote upon lamer growing tit-bits. Livers, for example, and hearts, brains, sweetbreads, kidneys.

There are livers and livers. Chicken livers are much in request. Take six, fresh and sound. Wash very clean in cold water, drain well, salt very lightly, but do not pepper. Barely dust with flour, then wrap each liver in a very thin slice of streaky bacon, skewer it on with a toothpick and clip off the sharp ends after skewering. Lay compactly but without crowding in a well-buttered bag, add a teaspoonful of water, a tablespoonful of tomato catsup, or fresh tomatoes peeled and sliced, or else half a gill of stock, flavored with celery, seal and cook twenty-five minutes in a fairly hot oven.

Giblet patties suit some palates. To make them, parboil the giblets, mash or mince fine, throwing out all strings or lumps, also shreds of onion and a very little celery, with, if you like, a grate of nutmeg or of lemon peel. Moisten with melted butter or rich stock, cut five thin squares of good puff paste, cover half each diagonally with the prepared liver, fold over the other half, pinch tight together and bake in a well greased bag fifteen minutes in a fairly hot oven.

Parboil a pound of calf's liver. When tender, but not ragged, take up cool and cut in strips as thick as they are wide. Wrap each strip in a slice of thin bacon, roll in flour, put in a bag with a little butter—the bag must be well greased—and cook for ten minutes in a hot oven.

Baked lamb's heart is much approved by those who like that sort of thing. Get three hearts, cut out the tops and soak at least two hours in cold slightly salted water to remove the blood. Take out, rinse, drain well, stuff with bread crumbs or any stuffing approved—even plain mashed potatoes or boiled rice will answer. Fasten the tops well over the stuffing. Lay in a well buttered bag and cook for fifty minutes to an hour in a fairly hot oven.

Beef heart can be cooked the same way, but must soak longer—three hours at least. It must also cook longer, the time depending on the weight.

Split and clean lamb kidneys, scald in lightly salted water very quickly, drop in cold water a minute or two, then cut in quarters. Take a spoonful of flour and season it well with salt, pepper and a very little grated nutmeg. Roll the quartered kidneys in it, then shake upon each a single drop of tabasco. Get a fine skewer and have ready thin sliced streaky bacon.

Thread one end of a slice on the skewer, then put on a piece of kidney, double the free end of the bacon over the point, and skewer it fast. Add another piece of kidney, fold the bacon again. When the slice gives out put on a fresh one. Leave the point of the skewer projecting almost an inch, then stick over the point a piece of white potato so that it will not tear the bag. Fill as many skewers as needed, lay them points foremost, that is toward the mouth, in a well buttered bag. Add a lump of butter rolled in flour and a spoonful of tomato catsup, or half a spoonful of Worcester sauce, and the same amount of water. Seal and cook in a hot oven fifteen to twenty-five minutes, depending on how heavily the bag is loaded.

Chicken livers, or those of squab, can be cooked in the same manner, leaving out the catsup and adding only the butter. Beef kidney, sliced rather thin, highly seasoned, and cooked between thin slices of bacon for twelve minutes in a hot oven, is a near approach to grilled kidney.

Blanche sweetbreads by scalding them in a slightly salted water then parboil, and put between plates to press. Trim neatly, put in a very well greased bag with a sauce of butter, cream, sherry wine and seasoning—only be careful to touch lightly with the herbs—and cook forty minutes to an hour in an even oven only moderately hot.

Brains of any sort must be scalded in boiling salt water, peeled and dropped in cold water for at least ten minutes. Half an hour will not hurt. The ways of cooking them are many. For scrambled brains, parboil them until they just begin to break, drain out, and mix with beaten eggs, adding seasoning to taste. Pour into a well buttered bag with an extra lump of butter at the bottom of it, lay another lump on top, seal and cook in a hot oven twenty-five to fifty minutes, according to the size of the bag.

The b. in-and-egg mixture can be served for breakfast or a late supper on toast thus: Have rounds of crisp buttered toast, cover neatly with the mixture, sprinkle with grated Parmesan and dot with bits of butter. Cook inside a well greased bag ten to twelve minutes in a fairly hot oven. Serve very hot with ale and sour pickles.

Brains scalded and peeled can be cooked with strips of bacon laid over them, adding a very little stock or milk and water. Season them to taste and cook in a fairly hot oven twenty-five to thirty-five minutes. Serve with baked apples or baked sweet potatoes. The brains are so rich that they eloy without something of that sort on the side.

The White Shetland Veils still have the call of the season.

White lace veils are also very strong and are expected to increase in favor.

At present there seems to be an unusual demand for hair ornaments.

For wearing with the summer or lingerie hats the hat pins with mounts of small and large flowers are meeting with much favor.

Crystal buttons continue to head the list for ornamental trimming and promise to continue popular for fall.

Another fancy line that is finding favor in Paris is cut crystal jewelry, such as brooches, pendants, earrings, long chains and numerous other small article.

Other articles that show strong indications of popularity throughout the remainder of the year are bracelets, long chains and fancy hair-pins.

Separate coats at present are principally in the Norfolk, Mackinaws and Blazer styles.

For traveling and automobiling the full length linen coat is the most favored.

Norfolk and Blazer coats are also being developed in linen and other heavy summer fabrics.

A combination of laces and embroideries promises to be exceedingly good for the summer season.

That embroidered Voiles will be in favor is generally expected.

The majority of bows this season on hats are flat in shape.

Pleated frills of net, shadow lace or hemstitched batiste as a finish for necks of waists and for use in sleeves is at present a great vogue.

The modified panier will be seen in the new tailor-made suits.

One-piece linen dresses in white and natural are indeed very smart and are enjoying quite a lot of popularity.

The new addition to the Turkish Toweling effect is the blazer stripe for outing wear.

UNION STAR NEWS

Mrs. Judith Watlington Dies At Ripe Old Age--Past Four Score Years--Mrs. Elizabeth West Hurt.

Early Sunday morning death entered the home of James Watlington, and took away the spirit of his mother, Mrs. Judith Watlington, formerly Miss Judith Cox. She would have been 88 years old next month. She has lived a long and useful life and she shall miss her very much, but God knew best and has taken her to a better land.

She was married to N. R. Watlington about 1810 and was the mother of eight children five of whom survive her, they are: Roland, Nathaniel, Arnspar and James Watlington and Mrs. Emma Parks, she also has living one brother, R. GOLDEN JUBILEE OF WALL STREET REGIMENT.

The Twenty-second Will Celebrate on May 28 Next.

The fiftieth anniversary of the departure from New York of the Twenty-second regiment engineers for the civil war will be celebrated May 28 next, when the survivors, who perhaps number less than 100, will be specially honored.

On that occasion the regiment will assemble at its armory and be reviewed by the veterans, after which there will be a short parade by a provisional Twenty-second regiment company of the veterans themselves and the existing regiment, the veterans forming the right of the line, followed by the other veterans, and these in turn by the members of the present regiment. In the evening there will be a collation, at which the veterans will be the guests of honor.

The original Twenty-second was what might be called a Wall street regiment. In April, 1861, when all the national guard were at the front, the banks, insurance companies and other institutions of New York decided to form and equip at their own expense a military organization for the defense of the city. In pursuance of an advertisement to that effect, a committee was formed, with Lloyd Aspinwall as president and Hugh N. Camp as secretary. Its membership included F. S. Winston of the Mutual Life, Morris Franklin of the New York Life, George T. Hope of the Continental Fire, Nathaniel Hayden of the Chatham bank, F. S. Lathrop of the Union Mutual Insurance company, Charles J. Martin of the Home Insurance company, John Wadsworth, E. A. Stansberry of the Metropolitan Insurance company, James M. McLean of the Citizens' Fire Insurance company, and William H. Aspinwall.

This committee raised $18,000 and imported from England the necessary Enfield rifles and accoutrements at a cost of $17,624. The regiment itself, after its organization, raised $6,000 more.

Colonel James Monroe, who had served on General Scott's staff in Mexico, was appointed to command the regiment. He died of fever the following year while with the regiment in Virginia.

BUILDING BOOM

On At Irvington--Contractors Delighted With Outlook For Spring And Summer--City Council Gets Busy.

The building boom is on at Irvington. Carpenters, contractors and teams all busy. It was thought last winter that there would be nothing doing in this town in the way of building during the year. The contractors all had the blues, were down in the mouth and were preparing to move out for more congenial climes where there was more work and a chance to make something for themselves and families. They were really down and out as they expressed it. Nothing to do and nothing in sight.

Now things have changed in that thriving, hustling little city. The hammer and saw, shovel and pick and a little dynamite are all filling the air with their notes of industry and bustle.

The city council got busy, made an order that several hundred square yards of side walks should be put down, streets graded and repaired. While it created a big howl and some of the property owners rebelled against the order they finally fell in line and now the good work is progressing nicely and everybody is concentering. This movement stirred up the people who were talking of building and they got busy. Now there are a number of houses going up and contracts are being let for more. The Irvington Hardware & Implement Company are excavating basement for their two story brick business house. Ed. Whitehead, of Cloverport, has the contract for the brick work and C. A. Penick the contract for the carpenters work.

Jesse C. Payne has let contract for a handsome two story 8 room dwelling. J. A. Witt contract for 6 room dwelling both to be on the bungalow style. J. K. Bramlette is the contractor.

The Henderson Route has leased of Jonas Lyons' part of his restaurant building for passenger depot. Carpenters have been at work all the week remodeling it. A passenger ticket office, waiting rooms for white and colored passengers have been opened, which have been papered, painted, new floors laid, water installed, making the place an ideal and convenient depot for passengers. Robert Lyons has been appointed passenger ticket agent and has charge of the depot.

The Irvington Mill and Elevator has closed down for repairs. New machines will be installed, old ones discarded. Every machine in the mill will be thoroughly overhauled, cleaned and put in first class order. One machine that is being put in will take the place of eight old ones, do better work and at a lower cost. And so Irvington is moving on to greater and bigger things.
